

Why one broken link destroys the entire chain

- If you tamper with a block in the middle of the chain, it will have a new hash.
- You will then need to fix the next block's reference to this block's hash.
- The fact that you changed the next block's data means the next block will have a different hash.
- So now you will need to fix the next next block's reference
- ...

