Putting Code on a Blockchain

- Programs are essentially contracts

- Specific parameters as input yield agreed upon (programmed)outputs

- A smart contract is just code that runs on a blockchain

- Instead of verifying transactions, nodes verify that the output really is the output in the written program

Why It's Great